Discovering in Illustrations
Choose a different illustrated detail each time and describe it, for example: “I see something round in blue...” The second participant will have to find it among the illustrations in the book.

Enjoyable Waiting
The next time you find yourself waiting, you can use your imagination to pass the time.

You can think together – what is the doctor doing in his room right now, maybe he's even building a Lego? Or is he making pancakes? Count and describe your thoughts to each other.

The Challenge of Waiting

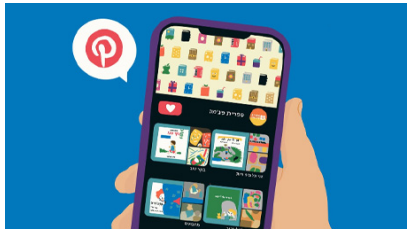

You can wait for time to pass in all sorts of challenging ways. You can check, for example, who manages to stay on one leg the longest, or who only manages to talk in pantomime until it's his turn.
